STORY OF THE CRANE

Before humans inhabited this world, it is said the clans were already here. Before the humans arrived, the animals, fish and birds were told by the Creator that humans were coming and would be pitiful creatures who had nothing. So, each of the animals, fish and birds said, "We will take care of them and show them how to live in harmony with all of Creation. We will sacrifice ourselves as food so they won't starve and we will supply them with our skins so they will be warm. We will teach them what medicines and ceremonies to use to heal themselves."

These clans are still with our people today.

The cranes were instrumental in establishing the clan system for the Anishinabek (the First People) and are involved in leadership and the sharing of teachings. It is said the cranes have a loud voice that can be heard for miles. When the crane gives a teaching, it can be heard far away in other parts of the world; people listen and learn when the Crane Clan teaches.

Historically, and as we honor our traditions in the 21st century, clans are painted on warrior shields and encircled with medicine bundles. Today clan markers, items which represent one's clan, bring honor and prestige to our families.
